"The Source of Christian Joy"

Philippians 1:1-11

By Dr. James Loft

If Christianity does not make a man happy, it does not make him anything at all.

Philippians has been called "The Epistle of Joy."

Again and again woven throughout the fiber of this letter are the words "joy" and "rejoice." They recur as a brilliant thread that weaves its way through a lovely piece of cloth.

We do well to remember that ours is meant to be a life of Christian joy - full of radiance. But from what does a Christian derive joy? What was Paul's cause for Christian joy, and what is ours? It is the fellowship of believers.

For Paul said, "I thank my God upon every remembrance of you... For your fellowship in the gospel," (Phil. 1:3, 5).

That which brings real joy to the Christian today is not the building in which he worships, the program in which he participates, or the good that he does; if there be any real joy in his life, it comes from fellowship with other believers. The absence of this fellowship well explains the absence of joy in the lives of countless Christians today.

If ours is to be a life of "Christian joy," it must be a life lived in the fellowship of believers. In Philippians 1:1-2 Paul sends greetings to the saints "which are in Philippi," the first church established in Europe, whose birth is described in Acts 16. What lay behind this church? What are the principles upon which any work of Christ depends and is built?

In Philippians 1:1 the apostle speaks of "the servants of Jesus Christ."

Paul wanted to go to Bithynia, but God closed the door - "the Spirit suffered them not." Then God called him to Macedonia, and he went.

Is there not something to learn from this? I think so.

We have almost come to the position where we think it does not matter whether we obey God, because, after all, we can simply turn to 1 John 1 and claim the promise, "If we confess our sins..." We are in serious danger of taking up the attitude that says, "It doesn't matter if I sin."

The lesson that stands out vividly in this passage is that the work of God depends on the obedience of His servants.

It matters profoundly if you and I are disobedient to the will of God.

Here we find that the existence of a church depends on the obedience of one man who was prepared to accept God's forbidding and prepared to obey God's calling. The whole situation at Philippi turned on the obedience of a servant.

The operation of the Holy Spirit reaches all kinds of people in all kinds of ways.

Acts 16, which tells us of the origin of this church, shows the universal appeal of the Holy Spirit as it tells of the salvation of 3 people - Lydia, who was an Asiatic, the slave girl who was a Greek, and the jailer who was a Roman. Lydia was of Paul's culture, while the slave girl legally was not even a person but a tool, and the jailer was middle class.

Lydia was converted quietly ("whose heart the Lord opened," v.14), the jailer was converted dramatically, and the slave girl was converted wonderfully. The Holy Spirit sets Christians apart.

The apostle addressed the Christians in (1:1) "which are at Philippi." Christianity is seldom popular when God is really working. At Philippi opposition was aroused immediately. Paul and Silas were beaten and thrown into prison. There are always birth pangs when a church is born or God's work is flourishing.

One of the sad commentaries on our day is that we expect the Spirit of God to work without cost or pain to us.

The gratitude this fellowship shows is expressed in Philippians 1:3-8. It is a lovely thing when remembrance and gratitude are bound up together.

In our Personal Christian relationships, it is great to have nothing but happy memories, and that is how Paul thought of the Christians in Philippi. But what are the strands that bind one Christian to another Christian?

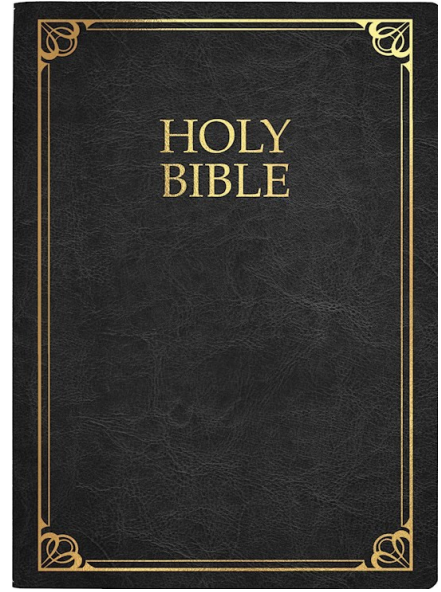

A life common to the fellowship. The wealthy business woman Lydia, demon-possessed slave girl, and a middle class jailer all shared the same sweet Christian fellowship. Christian fellowship is gracious toward all. Snobbery has no place in the church.

Although everything may be ever so wonderful, God is never fully satisfied. Our fellowship seeks a growth yet to be realized.

It seeks: That profusion which is the measure of love. The picture is a bucket standing under a stream of water with the water pouring over every side and overflowing into others. Love never asks, "How little can I give." There is no sentimental love but love guided by true knowledge and wise judgment.

Love is the way to knowledge. If we love Jesus, we will want to learn more and more about Him and gain that perception that guides the ministry of love.

The cause for Christian joy is the fellowship of believers. And your responsibility and mine is to see that His fellowship is paramount in our church.

Dear Church Member,

I would like to invite you to participate in what I believe will be a spiritually enriching challenge this year. I am reaching out to members of our church family through this letter to issue a challenge to read the Bible through in a year.

Many of us only make time to read the Word in times of need or during church service, but the more familiar we are with the Bible, the more we understand ourselves, each other, and the Lord. While this seems to be a difficult task, I assure you that it is not. The Bible holds the incredible history of our relationship with God as well as His clear and passionate guidance for us as His children. If we use it merely as a reference book, we deny ourselves a great deal of the amazing insights into who we are and who we were made to be. Don't be intimidated - He wrote the Word so that we would clearly understand it.

If you find yourself up to the challenge, there are a number of study Bibles with one-year plans. For those of you who are more internet-savvy, you can read online at sites like www.ewordtoday/year or even receive your readings via email. I am confident that one of these options will work for you. Thank you for your time. Be blessed.

Yours in Christ,

James E Loft

“More Than Laundry”

Associate Pastor Andy Clark

It was a hard weekend for fans of the nearest NFL teams. The Bears star quarterback was injured (hopefully not for too long) in a loss to the Vikings, and the Colts lost an overtime heartbreaker to the Chiefs. I'm a few years removed from any deep interest in the NFL, but one team I do follow, the Cubs, has been trying to break my heart recently (again) by sputtering at the end of the regular season. Long ago, I introduced my daughter to the saying, “Your just cheering for laundry.”

The meaning of this saying isn't too hard to decipher: Players come and go, you cheer for them when they're on your team and against them when they're on the other team. The ownership of teams changes hands, and people aren't usually interested in what goes on at that level of their team anyway. Most stadiums are plowed under after as little as 20 years, and even those that haven't, as Wrigley Field, have been remodeled and subtly adjusted to the point that not a brick, bleacher, seat or clubhouse of the original remains.

So what is it for which we cheer when we root for our favorite team? To a large degree it is a shared sense of history; the historic wins and crushing losses we experienced with fellow fans, be they strangers sitting by us in the stands or family watching with us long ago. Maybe it was a school we attended decades ago. Isn't this simply an us-versus-them scenario played out over years (and years and years, since 1876 if you're a Cubs fan).

Do we unintentionally carry this same mentality over into our Christianity? Singing along to mostly familiar songs with mostly the same people each week. Sharing the highs and lows of weddings, funerals, baptisms, and graduations. There's a lot to be said for these shared experiences and going through life with each other. But one of the authors I follow about the Cubs, talks about the community of folks he's met and made in the bleachers at Wrigley Field, and many of the same shared-life experiences occur for people within that context as well. Are we just cheering for the laundry? I hope not.

As important as it is to share life with each other, I hope we realize the greater purpose for which we gather each Sunday. I hope we realize the singular God we worship and the abundant, set-apart life He has called us to live (John 10:10, Romans 12:1-2).

I hope we all know that we don't just gather to sing songs at a pep rally. We gather to “spur one another on to love and good deeds” (Hebrews 10:24). We meet to encourage one another in faith and sharpen each other's understanding of the sword of the spirit, as iron sharpens iron (Proverbs 27:17, Ephesians 6:17).

It is the church, the Bride of Christ, the faithful in Christ Jesus, the children of God who are called according to His purpose. I daresay that is a bit more than just laundry.

Interested in helping the Youth Program at the church financially?

There are a couple of ways to designate your giving to help student ministries here at FCC. The Team Kids ministry continues much as it has been, faithfully serving our elementary age students (K-6) with weekly programming and special events. You may continue to designate money to “Team Kids,” directly and exclusively supporting that work.

Similarly, gifts for the Junior and Senior High age group can be designated as “Jr/Sr High Events.” Any money given with that designation will go toward feeding students on Sunday nights (just like Team Kids does), other resources needed for weekly meetings, or to help pay for students going to special activities, such as the youth conference students will attend in January just like we did last year. This should not be confused with money toward missions or money toward sponsoring weeks of church camp.

Thanks for your support of our students!

The VOICE of the MARTYRS

“Displaced Pastor Reaches the Displaced”

Pastor Pierre Lassane uses a tattered colored flip chart to explain the gospel to 80 some people that include Muslims. This group has taken refuge at a former elementary school, now a camp for internally displaced people (IDP), after fleeing from Islamic terrorists who have attacked areas of Burkina Faso, Africa in recent years.

The Muslims in the camp have suffered greatly at the hands of Islamists, followers of their own religion, making them more open to Pierre’s hopeful message. “Before the terrorists came, the Muslims didn’t want to listen to us,” stated Pierre. “If they saw you, they didn’t want to talk to you.” Now when Pierre goes to the displaced, they are coming to listen and are placing their faith in Christ.

More than 2 million people in Burkina Faso (a population of 24 million) have been forced to flee from Islamist groups that have invaded from the neighboring countries of Mali and Niger since 2016. The Militants have killed both Muslims and Christians.

Pierre was once a fervent Muslim himself. In 1985, Pierre’s older brother became ill. After others were unable to help, the two brothers visited a pastor. After the pastor prayed for the older brother, he recovered from his illness. Meanwhile, the pastor shared accounts out of the Bible that shocked Pierre. “When the pastor was preaching and sharing the story of Jesus, it wasn’t the same account that we read in the Quran.” That teaching, opened Pierre’s eyes to the truth of the gospel, and he would come to place his faith in Christ.

When Pierre began sharing the gospel message with others, his family and the entire village rejected him. Pierre’s father kicked him and his wife out of their shared home, forcing them to live on land that locals considered to be cursed by evil spirits. The couple was told they wouldn’t live two weeks.

Due to a series of events, including Pierre fasting and praying and crying out for God to intervene, an occurrence happened that led to a change of things. Within days of Pierre’s pleading with God, an old tree that the community believed harbored evil spirits, came crashing down during a storm. In part, because of this, and that they, Pierre and his wife, had survived illness and the specter of death, many people in the village began to listen as Pierre shared the gospel.

In 2001, Pierre attended Bible school and then returned to his home village as an ordained minister. While some in the village were willing to listen this time, Pierre’s father still rejected the message. In time, Pierre had planted 5 churches in the area around his village.

Since April 2019, Islamists have specifically targeted Christians. In May of the same year, militants attacked a village 12 miles from Pierre’s home, murdering the pastor and four deacons. The militants target church leaders because they hinder the establishment of an Islamic State in Burkina Faso. Two days later, 40 armed men rode into Pierre’s village on motorcycles – they were looking for Pierre, who was warned by a friend. Pierre and wife hid as the militants searched for them. They murdered two of Pierre’s neighbors. Pierre and his wife along with their 8 children fled on foot, walking 25 miles to reach safety.

Through 2019 the Islamists attacked dozens of villages forcing 60,000 people in the region to relocate further south near the capital city.

A program has been devised to sustain displaced church leaders and their families by training them to raise poultry which is cheaper and more flexible to manage under the strained circumstances versus farming. None of this has slowed or stopped Pierre to evangelize wherever he can, even while escaping close calls in the process.

SHOEBOX MINISTRY 2026

Operation Christmas Child Update –

This congregation has long supported the Shoebox ministry. Through the years we have gone through different ways of collecting boxes for shipping to children around the world. Individuals packing their own boxes, gathering supplies year around to pack larger numbers of boxes, and now; we are returning to individuals packing their own boxes again.

Since there are a number of supplies available, we will use some to complete more boxes. The supplies that have been left over from previous years can be combined into filler packages and placed in boxes at the packing centers. These are added to those boxes needing more items, or to replace restricted items that have to be removed. There is no shipping cost to forward these items for donation.

We hope you will continue to support this wonderful mission. In the past we have sent 130 to 150 boxes. Let's try to continue our support. Packing a box for a child shares the "Love of Jesus from Christians Around the World."

Operation Christmas Child Shoebox Challenge

Let our congregation begin a new Challenge Mission.

1. Pick up a Shoebox (as many as you wish to fill)
2. Pack for a Boy or Girl and choose an age.
3. Check out the flyers inside the box and look for items during the summer sales and begin planning and packing your box.
4. As you complete your boxes, add labels and include a letter or picture if you wish.
5. Return your boxes as completed anytime from August to October, and pick up more boxes if you wish.
6. Each box needs $10 per box for shipping & religious materials. If you can contribute, Do not place the money inside the box. Place in envelope marked the "Shoebox Fund" and drop in the offering box.
7. If you are unable to shop for boxes and wish to help, please donate to the "Shoebox Fund" to help defer the $10 shipping cost for others.

Note: You can also use regular shoeboxes or plastic shoeboxes.
